

I am writing to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to encourage them use Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law be a model in proposing rules that unsolicited calls from various companies and organizations. Please do not pass a law that is less restrictive or would diminish what Indiana has.

Since I signed on to a list that prohibits calls to my home, unwanted calls - as well as hearing the phone ring - have drastically dropped. My husband goes to bed early and not having these calls wake him up has been wonderful. This is due to me signing Indiana's No-Call List.

Please look at what Indiana is doing and do not lessen the protection I have now.

Thank you.
